PREFACE

This updated and revised index facilitates quick location of all material relevant to the art of music culled from articles, reviews, reports, notes, memorials, and bibliographies contained in Speculum, a Journal of Medieval Studies from Volume 1, 1926 through Volume 54, 1979.

Numbered entries are for articles in Speculum arranged by their authors and for monographs, essays, musical editions, etc. reviewed therein arranged by their authors, editors, or titles as appropriate. Each numbered entry includes the full citation. (Thirty-five entries are later additions and are accommodated by the addition of lower-case letters.) All other entries serve as references from subjects, titles, catchword-titles, and reviewers' names to numbered entries. Each full bibliographic citation includes volume (year):page number.

Examples of the various kinds of entries follow:

118 Hewitt, Helen, Harmonice musices odhecaton A.

Review of Hewitt's edition Article

Reviewer's name: as reviewer of books entered as 146 and 216; as subject in article 201

Subject: as such in articles 4, 21, 175, etc.; as qualified subject in 44, 65, etc.

While many articles treat musical subjects exclusively, others vary widely in musical interest. A number of studies, though exemplary in substance, relate to music or to some aspect of musical scholarship in an ancillary or incidental way: Gumbert and Pope (codicology, diplomatics) 111, 191; Collins, Rudick, and Wall (dramaturgy, performance practice in plays) 61, 213, 238, 272; Blount (folk legend, place names) 30; Gransden (realistic observation) 108; Marshall (troubadour text editing) 149, 150; Meyer-Baer, Pacht, and Remnant (iconography) 154, 180, 205; Crane and Seebass (organology) 69, 227; Creed and Stevens (performance practice) 70, 241.

Other studies that mention music have been excluded from the index, however. These include the "beautiful horn sequence" in the Chanson de Roland where the hero sounds his oliphant on the battlefield of Roncevaux [Nichols, 44 (1969):51-77]; various monastic canons decreeing that the monks shall, among other duties, ritually sing or perform mass and office; a study of onomatopoeia in riddles and the "folkloristic belief that swans sang with their wings" [Nelson, 49 (1944):421-40]; the author who betrays "a tin ear for the music of Chaucer's irony" [Grennen, 49 (1974):158-59]; the lines "Joy is known, ranked around music" [Nitze, 29 (1954):698] or the whereabouts of the music to Fulbert of Chartres' hymn for peace during the eleventh-century peace movement [MacKinney, 5 (1930):181-206].

Also omitted are many nonmusical and specialized articles that, for instance, may relate to genres of poetry that are known to have been sung [i.e., the chanson de geste in the review of Belanger's Damadien: The Religious Context of the French Epic by R. J. Cormier, 52 (1977)]. On the other hand, Yerushalmi's review fails to mention whether Samelson's "Romances and Songs of Sephardim" contains music; therefore it was listed, though unnumbered.

Some brief notices of recent publications of musical interest that occur without critical treatment are also excluded from this index (i.e., Frederic L. Cheyette's notice of Cosman and Chandler, eds, Machaut's World: Science and Art in the Fourteenth Century. 54 (1979):882).

For their unselfish efforts in helping prepare the final copy, special acknowledgements are due Professor David Austin, Music Librarian; Dr. Walter J. Wentz; Kathy Wolff, Wichita State University; and Linda Solow, Music Librarian, The Libraries of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Musically Related Articles

and

Book Reviews

compiled by

Arthur S. Wolf

music Library association 1970 ML 128 M3 W6

This index is intended to facilitate the location of all material relevant to the art of music contained in SPECULUM, A JOURNAL OF MEDIAE-VAL STUDIES from volume I, 1926, through volume XCIII, 1968. The journal is published quarterly in January, April, July and October.

Many articles found in SPECULUM treat musical subjects exclusively, while others vary widely in musical interest. Included in this index are a number of articles which relate to music or to some aspect of musical scholarship in an ancillary or incidental manner. A few were chosen merely because of their particular value as tools of historical research. For instance, legend and folklore play an important role in the music of all peoples, therefore the inclusion of Alma Blount's ONOMASTICON ARTHURIANUM, where abbreviated place-names and personal names of storied Briton are identified. Articles dealing with extant hymn or song texts, but which lack the music, are also included, for such literature remains valuable in tracing the poetic and musical form, performance practice, and the contemporary musician himself. Also included are articles concerning the attitudes of patristic philosophy towards music by Bonnard, Bragard, L.W. Jones and others, and articles by Celli-Fraentzel, Hanford, Haskins, Jarcho, Prado and others concerned with phases of either the highly organized dissemination of Roman liturgical music, or the spread of non-liturgical music throughout Europe.

This index contains both articles and reviews of books and music. The articles are listed by author and are fully subject indexed. The format for an article entry is:

93 Marrocco, W. Thomas, "The Enigma of the Canzone," XXI/4 (0:56) 704-713

The reviews are listed primarily by author or editor, with supplementary entries for reviewers and titles (by catchword). The format for a review entry is:

94 Marrocco, W. Thomas, FOURTEENTH CENTURY ITALIAN CACCE.
Rev: L. Hibberd, XVIII/2 (A:43) 252-254

The format for a supplementary review entry by title is:

CACCE, FOURTEENTH CENTURY ITALIAN/Marrocco (rev.), 94

Individual publications in collective reviews are also given supplementary entries for author or editor and title. All of the entries appear in a single alphabetical listing.
